Trinidad and Tobago

Li Hsien-nien, Vice Premier:

Although China and Trinidad and Tobago are separated by vast oceans, common historical experiences closely linked up our two peoples long ago. In the last century, indentured Chinese laborers, who were forcibly taken away and sold by Western colonialists, used to work and fight together with the people of Trinidad and Tobago and sowed the seeds of friendship between our two peoples. Since then, in the protracted struggle against imperialism and colonialism, our two peoples have always sympathized with, supported and encouraged each other. At the 26th session of the United Nations General Assembly in 1971, the representative of the government of Trinidad and Tobago voted in support of restoring to China her legitimate rights in the United Nations. The Chinese government and people highly appraise, and are deeply thankful for, this justice-upholding action of the government and people of Trinidad and Tobago. In June this year, diplomatic relations were formally established between China and Trinidad and Tobago, opening up broad prospects for the development of friendly relations and cooperation between our two countries.

United States

Chiao Kuan-hua, Foreign Minister:

The Chiese and American peoples have always been friendly to each other. After more than two decades of estrangement, the door was opened for exchanges between the two countries, and the friendly relations between the two peoples have developed.....

China and the United States have different social systems, and there are differences between us on a series of matters of principle. But this does not hinder us from finding common ground on certain matters. It is always beneficial for the two sides to have candid exchanges of views and increase mutual understanding. On the whole, Sino-American relations have in these years been moving ahead.....
